Welcome to the online nomination form for the Pathways to Prosperity (P2P) research project Developing an Evidence Base and Sharing Settlement and Integration Practices that Work. The third call for nominations is now open and you are invited to participate in this research project through self-nomination of one or more promising practices.

P2P is seeking nominations of promising practices from a variety of stakeholders involved in the settlement and integration of immigrants and refugees across Canada. Practices do not have to be IRCC funded to be nominated. A set of promising practices will be selected and featured on the P2P website through videos and accompanying briefs (click here for examples).

Definition of a Promising Practice:

Promising practices are innovative practices that have an objective basis for claiming effectiveness in achieving their stated aims and that have the potential for replication. Thus, promising practices are defined in terms of their effectiveness, which can be empirically measured as successful outcomes of the practice.

Areas of Practice:

In the current round, promising practices should focus on one (or more) of the following areas:

- Anti-racism dialogues and initiatives
- Building bridges between Indigenous and immigrant communities
- Coordination of settlement services in communities with multiple service providers
- Innovative funding models for settlement services (e.g., not dependent on one funder, not government dependent)
- Strategies for employer engagement
- Strategies for engagement with non-settlement service providers

Note: Videos will be shot on location in January - March 2020. Videos will feature several individuals who developed and/or utilize the practice discussing the details of the practices, including the essential ingredients that would need to be replicated in order to transfer the successful practice to other locations and to related areas of practice. The videos will also focus on the outcomes that were targeted and assessed.

The Call for Nominations will close on January 13, 2020 at 11:59 pm (PST).
