ABORDER LES ENJEUX LIÉS À L'IMMIGRATION DANS LE CADRE DES ÉLECTIONS FÉDÉRALES CANADIENNES

Préparatifs menant au lundi 21 octobre 2019

- La planification des élections et l'établissement de partenariats ont commencé en août 2018.
- Il y a trois jalons clés en vue des élections fédérales canadiennes de 2019.
- Notre force repose sur l'utilisation d'outils, des tactiques et des partenariats novateurs.

Immigration 101: Refugee Claimants

Who are refugee claimants?

These are individuals who make a claim that they are refugees at the Canadian border. Their claim is processed by the Immigration Refugee Board (IRB) using Canadian law and international conventions to which Canada is a signatory. IRB will determine if they can stay as a Protected Person.

How does Canada determine claims?

A claimant is determined to be a Convention refugee if they're not able to return to their country of origin because of a well-founded fear of persecution based on race, religion, political opinion, nationality or being part of a social group, such as women or people of a particular sexual orientation.

A claimant may be determined to be a person in need of protection. They can't return to their home country safely. They may face danger of torture, risk to their life or risk of cruel and unusual treatment or punishment.

What happens if IRB determines a person is a Convention refugee or a person in need of protection?

If both cases, their claim is accepted. They become a Protected Person. They can apply for permanent residence and include immediate family members overseas on their application.

What happens if their claim is denied?

Individuals can appeal the decision to the Refugee Appeal Division of the IRB. Once they have exhausted all legal avenues, they must leave Canada or be removed by the Canada Border Service Agency (CBSA).

Terminology

Labels like "individuals who entered Canada illegally" or "illegal migrants" are inaccurate and misleading.

A person can make a refugee claim either at the border when arriving in Canada at an official port of entry, or once already in the country, as an inland claim. The government will not prosecute those who cross at irregular border points and make a refugee claim.

Omitting the term "refugee" can reinforce misperceptions that refugee claimants are not refugees or are less deserving of Canada's protection.

We do not know whether a claimant is a refugee or not until their case has been decided. Most refugee claimants are refugees, as we find out through the refugee determination process: they don't become refugees because we say they are – they already are refugees before we find it out.

Security screening

Claimants are rigorously security screened by Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) and the RCMP. They are interviewed and fingerprinted.

Édification de partenariats

- Nous avons eu des conversations avec la Chambre de commerce de Halifax, Centraide et le Partenariat d'Halifax pour coordonner les messages sur l'immigration dans le cadre des élections de 2019.
- Nous avons discuté des rôles et des groupes servis par chaque organisation et de la meilleure façon de livrer un message cohérent et d'encourager l'échange d'information entre les équipes.

MAKING WAVES

Stories of Second-Generation Immigrants

Contre la rhétorique négative

- La pose de panneaux d'affichage « Non à l'immigration de masse » dans plusieurs villes du Canada a posé un premier défi.
- Les partenariats déjà établis ont été mobilisés, la Chambre de commerce de Halifax a dirigé l'élaboration d'une campagne de panneaux d'affichage numériques et l'ISANS a contribué à façonner les messages finaux.
- L'ISANS a rédigé une lettre d'opinion, mené des entrevues avec les médias et élaboré un contenu sur les médias sociaux à l'intention de tous les partenaires pendant la campagne.

HALIFAX
Immigration in Nova Scotia not a yes or no question, experts say

HALIFAX—For Jennifer Watts, the question implied by anti-immigration billboards that went up and down in a flash over the past week is the wrong one for Canadians to ask.

The billboards that went up in Halifax, Regina, Vancouver, Calgary and Toronto last week showed the smiling face of Maxime Bernier, leader of the People's Party of Canada, and the message: "Say NO to Mass Immigration." The ads, which caused an uproar across the country, have since been taken down.

"Our reality is, in fact, we benefit and we have always benefited from immigration," said Watts, CEO of the Immigrant Services Association of Nova Scotia. The non-profit offers settlement services such as language classes and employment assistance.

"We have an economic imperative to engage in this ... It supports the social and cultural development of our community, as it has throughout history."

The ads were paid for by a third-party group, but Bernier didn't shy away from the thrust of their message. On Twitter, he said there was "no link" between the party and the billboard backers but then asked his followers for their opinions: Yes or no to mass immigration?

Rather than ask whether Canada should accept more immigrants,

IMMIGRATION...

It's our Strength,
It's our Story

En voie vers l'élection canadienne de 2019

À compter d'août 2019, nous avons commencé à rassembler les différents outils que nous avons créés pour en faire un ensemble complet :

- Des feuillets d'information sur des thèmes clés;
- Une trousse d'outils sur l'ABC de l'immigration;
- Des cartes postales comportant des questions à poser;
- Des entrevues avec les médias;
- Des élections simulées.

Immigration 101: Refugees

Definition of a Refugee

"A person who owing to a well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence as a result of such events, is unable or, owing to such fear, is unwilling to return to it."

- 1951 Convention Relating to the Status of Refugees

Refugees help build a strong Canada

Canada is a leader in supporting those fleeing violence, persecution, and threat of death. As a nation, we are a beacon of hope in often dark and turbulent times for some of the world's most vulnerable

Once in Canada, refugees:

- build a society with unique perspectives, voices and lived experiences, that foster a more resilient and tolerant Canada and leader throughout the world.
- Volunteer and participate in community activities
- Start businesses and become employed in a wide range of professions reflecting their unique skills and backgrounds
- Take up citizenship at high rates

Key Messages

Canada is a multicultural, diverse, open and safe country. Immigration, including refugee programs, foster and build our multicultural society. Canadians gain access to unique perspectives, voices, and lived experiences.

Canadians are helpful, compassionate and caring citizens. Canadians have a global responsibility to respond to those around the world who are seeking refuge from violence, threats, wars and persecution. We can do more.

Refugees help build a strong Canada through filling Canada's employment gaps, starting businesses, volunteering and taking up citizenship.

Prochaines étapes et apprentissages clés

- Il est essentiel d'établir des partenariats proactifs hors du secteur de l'établissement pour rallier davantage les gens aux enjeux liés à l'immigration.
- L'établissement d'une base de connaissances commune, un suivi cohérent de la rhétorique et des messages aident à définir les thèmes ou les questions qui doivent être abordés dans une optique prévoyante.

Prochaines étapes et apprentissages clés

- Il n'est pas nécessaire d'être parfait — soyez aussi bon que vous pouvez l'être.
- Il est important de parler avec les nouveaux arrivants, la communauté dans son ensemble, notre personnel et nos partenaires, en plus de soutenir ceux qui ne peuvent pas communiquer publiquement.
- Il faut incuber et appuyer un personnel créatif et ingénieux qui repousse les limites de nos communications en faisant mieux en tant que secteur.
